

A THRUST OF DOVES

Can this be all?
A thrust of doves
Against the lapis sky,
The sun-blush in the sea?

When the gorged moon
Pulls through the sieve of trees
And my essence dissipates,
Sun-drawn through the roots,

When I can no longer
Pose the question,
It will be answered.

by Robert René Galván