“Through my paintings, I want to convey my joy in being alive after surviving a life-threatening illness. It is important to me to express a delight with life and evoke the freedom and wonder of a renewed sense of well-being, as well as to offer inspiration and hope to others.”

"I create art in series to more fully explore a theme. I start with a layer of texture by making expressive marks on canvas, then add acrylic paint in single layers. I use a variety of brushes, bottles, sponges, and other tools to paint bold color combinations and vivid patterns. This method offers fun surprises when spontaneous interactions form unique compositions.

"Eventually, when I experience the pleasure and enjoyment that I want to communicate to the world, I know the painting is complete."
